

Member Recruitment Talking Points

- The National Academies of Practice (NAP) is a nonprofit organization founded in 1981 to advise governmental bodies on our healthcare system and recognize exemplary careers in healthcare.
- Distinguished practitioners and scholars are elected by their peers from multiple different health professions to join the only interprofessional group of healthcare practitioners and scholars dedicated to supporting affordable, accessible, coordinated quality healthcare for all.
- NAP is comprised of multiple Academies. Find the latest list here.
- Journal of Interprofessional Education & Practice (JIEP) is a quarterly, peer-reviewed, online-only journal focusing on interprofessional healthcare topics, including education, practice, policy, and research. JIEP is devoted to dissemination of high-quality articles covering the full spectrum of interprofessional healthcare education and practice.
- NAP hosts an Annual Meeting & Forum each spring to promote interprofessional networking and collaboration. Find details on the latest Forum here.

Additional items to note:

- Discuss how membership in the organization will benefit your colleague. Be specific. Ensure your discussion addresses any of the benefits that will fulfill the needs of your colleagues' interest in a membership organization.
- Tell your colleague why you're a member and how your membership has been helpful to you, personally and professionally.
